

EMPOWERED WORTH

INTRODUCTION

I focus this practice on those individuals going through a divorce by providing clarity on the financial issues that will arise during this painful life transition.

I understand that separation and divorce present an emotional challenge and may create anxiety about establishing and maintaining your lifestyle and financial goals moving forward.

I work with you and your team of advisors to help you gain peace of mind, ensuring that your settlement is financially feasible. We offer expert advice about your unique financial needs with an objective, stabilizing viewpoint that is necessary in a very emotional situation.

WHAT CAN WE DO FOR YOU?

As a Certified Divorce Financial Analyst, I am trained to:

- Provide a Financial Analysis for your future
- Make sure you understand short and long term financial impacts of different settlement proposals
- Help you understand
 - Personal and Marital Property
 - Valuing and Dividing Property
 - Retirement Pensions
 - Spousal and Child Support
 - Tax Implications and Solutions

CDFA PROCESS

Stage 1: Preparation and Documentation

- Gathering and assessing financial information and helping prepare and review financial declaration.

Stage 2: Execution and Implementation

- We help you understand post-divorce funding needs and cash flow projections. This guidance will help empower you in the planning and execution of long term financial strategies. We take this time to start to create a custom financial plan.

Stage 3: Financial Management

- We work with your attorney to help set up your power of attorney, healthcare proxy, and estate planning.
- We help guide you in selecting a long-term financial plan with suitable risk management.

If you're going through a divorce or thinking of divorcing, please contact us for a consultation today.
